B. Lesley University has determined the education programs in Section A above are eligible for comparable licensure/certification in the states and territories listed below under the National Association of State Directors of Teacher Education and Certification (NASDTEC) Interstate Agreement. Massachusetts is a member state and a signatory of the NASDTEC Interstate Agreement, which facilitates the transfer of educator licensure between member states (not necessarily immediate reciprocity). Depending on your professional goals, where you reside or plan to teach, and the licensure structures that exist within that state, there are diverse pathways to licensure that may be relevant and some may require additional coursework, required tests, assessments, and/or classroom experiences.

Per the NASDTEC website: “The NASDTEC Interstate Agreement facilitates the mobility of educators among the states and other jurisdictions that are members of NASDTEC and have signed the Agreement. Although there may be conditions applicable to individual jurisdictions, the Agreement makes it possible for an educator who completed an approved program and/or who holds a certificate or license in one jurisdiction to earn a certificate or license in another state or jurisdiction.” For more information, including state specific requirements, please see: <https://www.nasdtec.net/page/Interstate>

For more information, including state specific requirements, please see: <https://www.nasdtec.net/page/Interstate>

A comparable license for the states above in bold requires that applicants have completed a Massachusetts approved program and hold the associated Initial Massachusetts license.

C. Lesley University has not yet determined if the Education Programs specified in Section A above are eligible for comparable licensure/certification in New Mexico, New York, and South Dakota. These states are not current NASDTEC signatories. Applicants and current students interested in licensure in these states are directed to the following state specific guidance for pathways to licensure:

- New Mexico: <https://webnew.ped.state.nm.us/bureaus/licensure/>
- New York: <http://www.highered.nysed.gov/tcert/certificate/teachrecother.html> South Dakota: <https://doe.sd.gov/certification/>

Please note: The New York Department of Education website states that eligibility of licensure applicants from other states, including those who complete teacher programs at a college or university in another state, cannot be determined until an application has been submitted and a review of applicant credentials has been completed. In addition, New York requires that applicants from other states complete an educator program that is comparable to a New York State-registered teacher preparation program completed at a New York state college or university based on the Department's review and may require licensure applicants to be assessed through an individual evaluation, which requires completion of college coursework aligned to the license competencies. Applicants who intend to pursue educator licensure in New York are strongly encouraged to explore the requirements specific to the license sought.

Periodic Review of Licensure Regulations and Moving to a New State

It is important for all applicants and students to understand the specific requirements of the state in which you intend to apply for licensure and to periodically review the requirements in order to be aware of any future changes to those requirements. If you move to a new state, you should be aware that the requirements for licensure may differ from the state in which you previously resided, and you are advised to become familiar with and understand the requirements of the new state. Students are expected to keep the University informed of any changes of location via the Address Change Form available on the Registrar's Office webpage.
